Face Mask Detection using Python | OpenCV

This application can be helpful for all shop owners, offices, banks, or any public place because if anyone is not wearing a mask, then he or she must not be allowed in that area. So, to take care of this problem, we don't need any guard or person who keeps a watch on people. We can integrate a camera that continuously clicks pictures of humans and detect from their faces whether they are wearing a face mask or not.

Eye Cancer Prediction from Images using Convolutional Neural Network

Retinoblastoma is generally known as eye cancer. It is uveal melanoma when compared to and compared to adults. It is a malignant tumor that has the ability to grow and damage the eye and its surrounding components. Therefore, detecting retinoblastoma in young children as early as possible is critical. The primary impact of this research is the detection of retinal tumor cells. It is also essential to identify the tumor's stage and subtype. Thanks to the proposed technologies, ophthalmologists can better predict and diagnose retinoblastoma cancer at an earlier stage.
